NOTE TO THE INSTRUCTOR:

This project is designed to help kids “Pay It Forward” by giving a “High Five” of thanks to another person. Here are some suggestions to make this project more meaningful.

Before you get started:

- Have a conversation with the group about why it is important to say “Thanks” to someone.
- Brainstorm people and reasons to thank that person on a chalkboard or piece of paper that the kids can refer to as needed. The people may include family members, teachers, bus drivers, neighbors or a coach. You also could do this for Teacher Appreciation Week, Mother’s Day or Father’s Day!
- Teachers or Instructors could also create these to give kids a “High Five!”

INSTRUCTIONS:

1. Using the markers, color in the hand or the background. If coloring in the hand, use a light color. Refer to finished photo for ideas.
2. Write in the name of the person and what you want to thank them for.

TIP: If you have colored in the hand, use a darker marker to write this information.

3. Decorate the sign with markers and sequins.

TIP: We recommend putting glue down first and sprinkling the sequins over the glued area then shaking off the excess over the paper plate.

4. If you are using optional decorations, glue them on as well. Let dry.
